Malaria in Africa

How have the number of malaria deaths changed over time in Algeria?

Deaths per year from malaria in Algeria have not increased or decreased since 2000. From that dashboard, I click on Algeria on the map, it shows deaths from malaria every year from 2000 to 2014. Since 2000, there has been about 1 death per year. So until 2014, there was only about 1 death per year. It can be seen on the map that Algeria is the country with the fewest deaths per year from malaria.

Which countries are most affected?

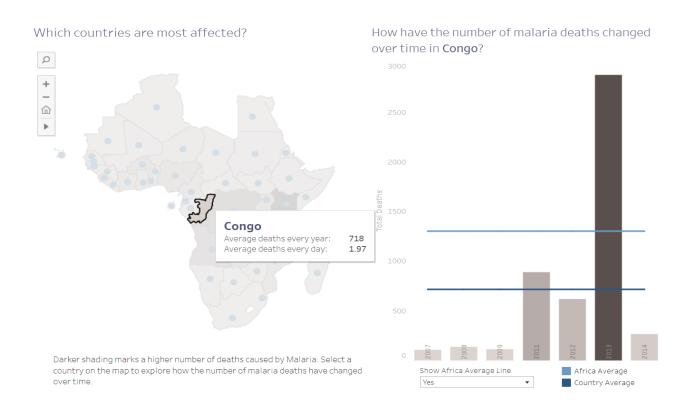

Darker shading marks a higher number of deaths caused by Malaria. Select a country on the map to explore how the number of malaria deaths have changed over time.

How have the number of malaria deaths changed over time in Sao Tome and Principe?

Deaths per year from malaria in Sao Tome and Principe have fallen by more than half since 2006. From that dashboard, I click on Sao Tome and Principe on the map, it shows deaths from malaria each year from 2000 to 2014. Since 2000, initially experienced a slight decrease in 2001, but suddenly increased by about a quarter in 2002. Then there was a decrease of about 200 deaths per year in 2003. Then there was a significant decrease until 2014. The lowest death rate per year occurred in 2007 which close to 0.

Deaths per year due to malaria in Congo increased 8-fold in 2011. 3 years earlier the death rate in Congo was around 100 per year. From that dashboard, I clicked Congo on the map, it shows deaths from malaria every year from 2007 to 2014. In 2012 the death rate again decreased by around 600 per year. However, in 2013 Congo experienced an epidemic of malaria deaths which reached over 2800 deaths per year. Then in 2014, the Congo experienced a significant decline with a figure of around 250 per year.